

I'm an incoming student and I'm just afraid people are gonna judge me wrong, just because I'm a brown kid that's trying to study ECE. It's scary thinking that you're going to a school like this and, just like hearing how you can get judged wrong and all that other stuff...and yeah, I really recommend listening to all of these stories. But you know, you just gotta keep pushing through programs like PSP and all of that. They really help you like find connections, especially with minority students.
